

A REAL HEROINE.—Yesterday afternoon a lady and gentleman were riding over the Neck in a single sleigh behind a very fleet animal, that appeared to be exerting every nerve to do his master's bidding. The young buck who held the reins, not appearing satisfied, thought he would ply the beast a little with the whip. The string of the lash had no sooner done its work than the proud steed champed his bit and pawed the ground in running speed. Our dandy suddenly became frightened, and, dropping the reins, leaped from the sleigh, leaving his lady-love in imminent danger of being dashed to pieces at the heels of a spirited and frightened horse.—The young and pretty damsel, finding herself thus deserted by one who she supposed would protect her, instantly seized the reins and guided the furious animal until he reached harder going, when he began to show signs of fatigue, and at last surrendered himself to the persevering and brave heroine. The brave young gallant, who so unconsciously parted with his lady, after recovering from his fall, made haste to escape the jeers and laughter that were justly poured upon him by the hundreds who witnessed his noble conduct.—Boston Bee.

MANY a Miss and Master, in these days, runs through all the schools and finishes an education before the teens are over, though Dr. Franklin, at sixty years of age, confessed that he had only fairly commenced his education. Systems of study now a days beginning often with Greek instead of the spelling-book, are probably ahead of Franklin's ideas. We have found this beginning at the top style. well hit off in the following:

"Father," said a lady to her indulgent spouse as he resumed his pipe after supper one evening, "you must buy our dear Georgiana an English Grammar and Spelling Book; she has gone through her French, Latin, and Greek, music, drawing, and dancing, and now must commence her English studies."

PURVISER'S FESTIVAL.—The birthday of Benjamin Franklin was celebrated in fine style by the printers of New York, on the evening of the 17th inst. About 3,000 ladies and gentlemen were present. Addresses were made by P. C. Baker, president of the Society, and Horace Greeley. At the supper some excellent toasts were given. The following, by John Neal, isn't bad:

Foot-prints and finger-prints.—What the single foot-print in the sand was to Robinson Crusoe—what the finger-prints in the over-arching sky are to the uplifted Astronomer—such was the printing of Benjamin Franklin, when he brought down the lightning from Heaven, and turned every thunder-cloud into a job office.

A RARE CHANCE.—A young gentleman, whose real name is "for the present withheld," addresses us a note which awakens all our sympathies, indicating as it does the "provoking and mortifying embarrassments which an accomplished man experiences," when he is out of tin. He says: "I am 28 years of age, five feet eleven inches and a half in height, a figure and face said to be the model of symmetry and beauty—a gentleman by birth and inheritance, (there was never a mechanic in my family,) educated in a European University, an accomplished musician, a thorough linguist—and utterly incapable of earning a living. I should like to marry into a wealthy family, which, wanting the prestige of birth, would be elevated by an alliance with me. I could make myself generally useful in such a family, by teaching the younger members manners, and accompanying the elder to the easy carriage and grace of well bred people.—There are many wealthy families who have boxes at the opera, who, under any direction, would speedily learn to look as aristocratic and important as they try to persuade themselves they are. Such a family, after a few seasons from me, would pass for well-bred people—in a crowd—and I should make them understand the opera, which now they do not." We regard this as a rare chance.—Sunday Dispatch.

A NEW WORK.—C. Edwards Lester is now engaged on a great national work entitled, "The Gallery of Illustrious Americans." This work is to contain biographical notices of twenty four of the most eminent citizens of this country, living and dead, with a portrait of each. It will be published in numbers.

FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR,
THOMAS WHITFIELD,

A correspondent of the Providence Herald, under the signature of "A Hero's Descendant," comments upon our article relative to the propriety of appropriating a sum of money to erect a monument to the memory of the Revolutionary heroes from this town, before provision is made for the payment of the Registered State Debt.—No very wisdy exclamation.

Well, we always expected if any opposition were made to this late remembrance of the Departed Brave, of Newport, it would come from Newport itself. The first thing they think of is money. The spirit of improvement has always lagged in that region.

This, to be sure, is a very potent argument. We are not aware that our citizens are any more penurious than those of any other place; and, certainly, their past history does not warrant any such assertion. On the contrary, had they been as ardent devotees of the golden rule as this "Hero's Descendant" asserts, it would have been better for the place and all who reside here, because they would have embarked in new projects, and made strong exertions to increase the wealth of the place. If the spirit of improvement has lagged, as the Herald's correspondent charges, the cause cannot be attributed to an excessive love of money; far from it,—it is just the reverse. And, surely, no man will charge us with any delinquency of duty, in endeavoring to arouse a spirit of enterprise, by inciting the good people of Newport to energetic action.

The arguments urged by this writer in the Herald are not strong, by any means; he thinks that a respectful remembrance of the heroes of the Revolution, by erecting a monument for them, would not lessen or delay the claims growing out of that war, for which the holders now ask remuneration. It would not lessen their validity, we admit; neither do we think that it would hasten their payment, inasmuch as no inconsiderable sum must be taken from the State Treasury to build this monument. He states that none of the descendants of the heroes to whose memory the monument is proposed to be erected, ever made any claim for remuneration for the loss of property during the war. If they made no claim, it was their own fault, and this certainly cannot invalidate the claims of those who have made a demand. Congress refused to allow any claims for the destruction of property, by the common casualties of the war, such as demolishing or burning houses, furniture, &c.; had not this been the case, we rather think even the descendants whose champion "A Hero's Descendant" claims to be, would have asked for a few thousand dollars.

In this Registered State Debt is not compensation for property lost during the war except a small portion for boats pressed into service,—but it is for money advanced previously, during and subsequent to the war, in order to carry on the Revolutionary struggle. And the successors of many of those who now hold these Claims for money advanced, also lost valuable property during the war, for which they made no claim, and ask no remuneration.—This is precisely the difference between the cases.

It is an easy matter to talk in chivalrous strains of the deeds of daring of our fathers, and say that blocks of marble ought to rear their snowy heads to heaven, as a perpetual token of gratitude to those who sacrificed much, and bled and suffered for their country. But this does not pay an honest debt; this does not merit recognised claims by liquidation.—As we said before, no man venerates the memory of the heroes of the Revolution more profoundly than ourselves, and no man would do more to perpetuate all that is great, glorious and distinguished in their lives and characters to the remotest posterity, than ourselves; all this glorious in their lives is engraved upon the hearts of their descendants; and will continue to be engraved there in all coming time, long after marble shafts have mouldered and crumbled to ruin. Their deeds belong to history, and nothing can efface them from the recollections of men. Let us pay the descendants of Revolutionary heroes what we should have paid their ancestors more than half a century ago, and then we can afford, with much more propriety, to rear a monumental pile in honor of the hallowed and gallant dead, who served their country nobly, and died "with all their country's honors blest."

We are glad to learn from the Providence Transcript that the Petition now before the Legislature does not ask for any exclusive privileges for a Branch Pilot Law for the benefit of any particular Company, or association of men. If the Legislature will pass a law securing to Rhode Island pilots their rights, and protecting them from the aggressions on the part of Massachusetts, New York and Connecticut Pilots; we shall be very glad; and we think with the Transcript, that a general law of this nature will have a very good effect, and will operate for the benefit of all our Pilots. As we stated, the other day, there are no better Pilots in the world than the Point Pilots of Newport; and we could not quite see any steps taken which would prove injurious to the interests of these worthy men without speaking out in their behalf as we have already done. All we ask for is fair work; and if anything can be done to benefit all concerned, in an equal degree, we shall be very glad, and this is all that they or we ask for or desire.

The Boston Post asks why a reduction of Officers and Salaries are not made at all the ports in the country, instead of at the large cities. Why, it is for the very best reason in the world. At all smaller places there are no more officers employed than are actually necessary, and their salaries are low enough, in all conscience, now. The extravagance is all at the Custom House of the large cities, which are ports of entry.

Since the above was in type, we learn that retrenchments have been made in the Custom House here; the two Boatmen were discharged yesterday, by order of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Drop in at Tishdale's and examine his truly splendid assortment of the richest Valentines; they far surpass anything that has ever been offered in Newport before, and are offered at exceedingly low prices. Tishdale is determined to supply the whole Town with these treasures, and from the great variety which he has, and the cheapness of all of them, we have no doubt he will succeed. Go, by all means, and see them. See advertisement, in another column.

We erroneously announced yesterday that Park Benjamin, Esq., would deliver his Poem, "The Age of Gold," at the North Baptist Church. We should have stated that it will be delivered at the Atlantic House Hall, on Tuesday evening next, at 7 o'clock.

Think of this. Sixty splendid Distributions of Rich China and Glass Ware, in all amounting to five hundred dollars, and only fifty cents is charged for a subscription; no wonder there is such a rush at Tishdale's; but a few more chances are left, at the same price.

The Tables Turned.—The Eastern Argus, after noticing a lecture by Miss Lucy Stone, on Woman's Wrongs, delivered before the anti-slavery Lyceum, in Portland, turns the tables in this wise, viz: "Anti-slavery parties," is a good maxim, meaning in the vulgar, "hear the other side." Now we hope that the Committee of the Lyceum will engage some able man to lecture on the wrongs of man perpetrated by woman. We have to bustle round to support them, pay the bills, spit the words, shovel the snow, take our turn at tending the babies, build the fires, see the doctors, furnish the silk and cashmere, and we have done it quite long enough.—It is time that these wrongs were redressed. We go hereafter for more equitable division of labor. We claim equality for the men. Woman has oppressed him too long.

We suggest that the editor of the Argus be invited to deliver the lecture, as he appears, from the above, to have been pretty essentially Cuddled. We should pity the poor fellow as he came out of the Hall, unless he was attended by a strong Police guard. Does he remember the Poet's fearful line,—

"Hell knows no fury like a woman scorned."

Among the items in the new French paper, the Napoleon, is one comparing the First Consul and his namesake with Washington.—Boston Times.

Oh judge. The comparison between the "namesake" and Washington, is about the same as that between a petty-fogging Squire, who had read ten pages of Blackstone, and Daniel Webster.

The Thick Clothing, for sale at Oak Hall, Boston, are what our friends need for a voyage to California. Go there by all means; you will be sure of getting them very cheap.

GRACE GREENWICH'S PROPENSITY.—She said of an old mill which had gone to decay, the water having dried away in its stream, "It wasn't worth a dam."

GENERAL ASSEMBLY,
JANUARY SESSION.
WEDNESDAY Morning, Jan. 30.
SENATE.—On motion of Mr. E. R. Potter, the act in amendment of an act regulating Water Mills was taken up, and the question being upon concurring with the House, the act was read and concurred.
Mr. Westcott presented an act in amendment of an act in relation to Banks; read and passed to a second reading, and referred to committee on Judiciary.
On motion of the Lt. Governor, the resolution respecting adjournment on Saturday next, offering by him yesterday, was taken from the table; and the question being on its passage, the resolution was rejected.
House.—An act in relation to Insane Persons, reported by the Com. to whom was referred the petition of Thomas R. Hazard. This bill authorizes the Governor to draw upon the General Treasurer for a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars for any one year, to be by him appropriated to the maintenance, in whole or part, at the Butler Hospital, of such insane persons as he may select, as State beneficiaries; read and passed to a second reading.
Memorial of Edward M. Gladding, and others, against granting the prayer of the petition of Joseph Adams, et al. for a law relative to Branch-Pilots; received and referred to the Special Committee to whom was referred the original petition.
The act to establish the office of Auditor of Accounts, which was assigned for this morning was laid upon the table, in order to take up the act to revise and amend the laws regulating Public Schools. The school act was taken up and the reading thereof by sections continued and finished.
The House then adjourned to 3 o'clock.

House.—A long debate was had upon the amendments to the License Law, which was the order of the day; this occupied the attention of the House until the adjournment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.
SENATE.—The Canada reciprocity bill was passed over. Mr. Houston's Territorial resolutions were made the order of the day for Monday.

Mr. Houston's amendment to Mr. Seward's resolutions, proposing 160 acres to each family not landholders or citizens, was taken up. Mr. Mangum said that you might recommend 320 acres and a negro besides. Mr. Seward explained his own resolution. Mr. Douglass opposed. Mr. Seward again explained his own suggestion. Mr. Houston his, and Mr. Walker his own. The resolutions were then referred.

Mr. Seward offered a resolution, in favor of binding documents of 300 pages, which was adopted; also, one for presenting Professor Johnson's books to Senators. Mr. Seward offered a resolution for rewarding Capt. Cook for his exertions in saving the passengers in the case of the Calch Grimshaw. The Senate then went into executive session, and adjourned.

House.—The mileage debate was continued, but was laid on the table; and on motion of Mr. Bayly, the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and took up the revenue resolution. Mr. Bayly made a speech, arguing that the expenses of collection are enormous. Mr. Brown, of Mississippi, followed; and the Committee rose and reported progress, and the House adjourned.

OFFICE HOLDERS AT WASHINGTON.—A Washington letter in the New York Tribune says:

"According to the Blue Book, there are employed in the District of Columbia, in permanent situations, 780 men, with salaries averaging from $1,500 to $1,800 each; of this number Virginia has 133, Maryland 131, and the District of Columbia 87, making 351, or nearly one half of the whole number. If we were to add to this other offices in the District, with salaries from $500 to $2,000, who are engaged in and about the public buildings and public ground, with what are termed 'temporary' clerks in all the Departments, we should have at least 600 men under Government appointment and pay from the two States above named and this District."

Miss Bremer.—The Boston Correspondent of the Salem Register, speaking of Frederika Bremer's visit to the Legislature, a day or two since, in company with Chas. Sumner, says one of the Representatives, who was not posted up, and did not catch the particular accent of her name, on being introduced to her, took her to be Mrs. Bremer, widow of the late Hon. Martin Bremer, formerly Mayor of Boston; and considering the ceremony as a delicate tribute to the departed worth of a municipal functionary, talked with her some time about the propriety of the present street pavement drains and public improvements; then astonished the dumb-founded authorities by a dissertation upon the falling off of the Oil Trade, in which her late husband had accumulated his wealth! It required all Mr. Sumner's address to extricate her from this worthy member; but he succeeded, and last night took her into the Abolition Convention in Faneuil Hall. The correspondent adds:—"Mr. Sumner is a Bachelor, and Miss Bremer is not a bit too old. In truth, imagine a rather prominent nose, and strongly developed chin, I think her quite attractive. She has a light expressive, laughing eye, dark eye-brows, and a bewitching smile. For some days past, she has been staying at the residence of Mr. Benson, on Pickney street, in the immediate vicinity of the great critic and essayist Whipple, upon whom she has been so sweet, that I think it quite fortunate that he is a married man and the father of a bouncing baby. In truth, this Miss Bremer is a coquette, evidently bent on setting out literary men at sixes and sevens."

The Plurality Question in Massachusetts.—The bill providing for the election of Members of Congress and Presidential Electors by a plurality vote, passed to a third reading in the Massachusetts House of Representatives on Friday, by a vote of 143 to 114. The bill provides for the election by a plurality after a failure to elect by a majority. There seems to be some doubt as to the passage of the bill through the Senate.

The term, "newspaper carriers," is now modernized; and stands thus—"Gentlemanly disseminators of early intelligence."
